

Coral reefs are fragile.

Blue Bay is a marine ecosystem.

Scientists use models to show how things work, to construct explanations for why things happen, and to make predictions.

One major cause of ecosystem disruption is human activity.

The term fishery includes all the people and organizations that catch a certain species of fish to eat or sell.

Solutions to environmental problems can lessen the negative impact humans have on Earth.

Animals interact with plants and other animals and with non-living things including air, water, and soil.

Yellowstone National Park was created in 1872.

